

Salvation Army Opens Drive on City To-morrow

Bombardment of Appeals for Home Service Fund
Launched With Slogan
"Dollars for Doughnuts"

$1,500,000 Asked Here

Vice-President Marshall to Speak at Preliminary
Opening in Garden To-day

The "blood and fire" flag of the Salvation Army will wave over New York this week beside the Stars and Stripes. Its place there symbolizes the heroism of the men and women soldiers who followed it into battle.

Never in the history of the city has there been as spontaneous and so nearly unanimous a showing of enthusiasm as is being manifested here on the eve of the Salvation Army's drive to raise New York's $1,500,000 quota of the national $13,000,000 home service fund.

From Jeff Davis, "king of the hoboes," to the members of New York's richest families; from Paul Swan, the dancer, to bishops and rabbis, judges, captains of industry, beggars of the slums—the whole great metropolis seems risen as one man, to see on the mark, ready for the start.

Drive Opens To-morrow

To-morrow morning 4,000 women in Salvation Army bonnet and cape will throng the streets and buildings of the city, seeking contributions. They will continue their efforts throughout the week. The common prediction is that both New York City and the nation at large will far exceed their allotments.

In Madison Square Garden at 3 o'clock this afternoon preliminary runs will be fired. Thomas R. Marshall, Vice-President of the United States; Monsignor Michael J. Lavelle, Vicar-General of the Roman Catholic diocese of New York; the Rt. Rev. Luther B. Wilson, Methodist Episcopal Bishop of New York; Rabbi Henry Pereira Mendes, former Governor Charles S. Whitman, Brigadier General Cornelius Vanderbilt and Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in America, and daughter of William Booth, founder, will be the speakers.

Miss Marie Sundelius, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will sing "The Star-Spangled Banner." "The Marching Song" and other selections at the meeting, while the New York police band and the Salvation Army band will play varied programs of music.

Appeals From Pulpits
This morning and to-night priests and ministers in hundreds of New York churches of all denominations will exhort their flocks to rally to the support of the Salvation Army in its undertaking to place its work among the poor of America upon a financial footing that will permit its efforts to devote their whole time to their mission of mercy.

"Dollars for Doughnuts" will be the slogan of the drive. The crisp doughnuts of the Salvation Army lasses tried for the men in khaki on the Western front have become a symbol of the affection in which the American people hold these humble warriors of the cross and it is to be made the most of in raising money for their activities at home.

One hundred big bass drums have been placed at stations throughout the greater city, and at noon to-morrow they will rattle forth the signal that will formally open the drive in New York. At that hour Commander Evangeline Booth, escorted by Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, will appear on the steps of the United States Sub-Treasury, at Wall and Nassau Streets, and make the initial address of the drive. Mrs. Harriman will have a battery of society girls garbed in Salvation Army bonnets and capes with her, and as soon as Commander Booth finishes speaking they will fry and sell doughnuts for a dollar each.

Another Opening at Library

While Commander Booth is holding forth before the Sub-Treasury, Gladys and Irene McIntyre, the famous "doughnut sisters," of the American Expeditionary Force will engage the attention of the uptown throngs from the steps of the New York Public Library. They will relate some of their experiences on the Western Front and also gather in dollars for doughnuts.

Mrs. Harriman and her young women aides will appear on the Sub-Treasury steps every day, except Wednesday, from 12 noon till 2 p. m. Wednesday is scheduled as "Doughnut Day" and the sale will continue from morning till night. The plan is to fry a doughnut four or five feet in diameter on this day, let the hole be filled with coins, auction the mammoth tid-bit off to the highest bidder and then resell it in small pieces to the public.

Mrs. Austin Gray is in charge of the soliciting of subscriptions at the railroad terminals. Mrs. Cornelius Bliss, Jr., will head a corps of society women who will work at the Pennsylvania station and Mrs. Alfred Mack will supervise this phase of the drive at Grand Central. Miss Tiffany will lead a corps of society girls who will take contributions in department stores, theatres and elsewhere throughout the city.

Col. Roosevelt to Speak

Speakers at the railroad stations will include Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, and J. S. Moss, aid to Ambassador Sharp. Miss C. L. Wilson, of the Metropolitan Opera Company; Evelyn Herbert, of the Chicago Opera Company, and George Herbert, Jr., will sing at the terminals. McCarthy and Fisher will put on vaudeville acts and George Shaffer, cartoonist, will draw caricatures of prominent persons in the audience's auction them for the fund. J. E. Dorn, who has charge of these features, announces they will run continuously from noon till 6 p. m. each day.

Paul Swan will dance to-morrow noon in Longacre Square to the accompaniment of a hand organ for the benefit of the fund, and will repeat the performance at 11:15 to-morrow night in the grill room of Hotel Commodore. Roshanara, the Hindu dancer, will dance at Hotel Claridge to-morrow night and sell her photographs. Eugene O'Brien, motion picture actor, will appear at the Ritz-Carlton at 11 p. m. and auction photographs of himself. Swan, Roshanara and O'Brien all offered their services through the War Camp Community Service.

Booths Dot Entire City

Indoor booths will be under the supervision of Miss Forrester and Miss Dorothy Eldred, of the women's committee. They have arranged to place booths, each with an attendant, in forty hotels, twenty-three banks, forty restaurants, seventeen department stores and twenty-five office buildings. Mrs. George Barton French will be in charge of the booth at the Waldorf-Astoria. Mrs. Henry Lowe at the Ritz-Carlton and Mrs. Charles S. Whitman at the Hudson Library steps are to be turned into a Liberty Theatre and speakers and entertainers will appear there each day at noon. Among these who have consented to deliver talks during the week are Major General Alexander, of the 77th Division; "Big Bill" Edwards, Collector of Internal Revenue; Martin Vogel, Major C. W. Wickereham, Major George T. A. Adeo, Rush Knox, Jacob Schiff, Thomas E. Rusk, Surveyor of the Port; former Ambassador Abram I. Elkus, Lieutenant Colonel Kenneth Gardiner and Francis Sisson, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company.

AFTER DOLLARS FOR DOUGHNUTS

General Cornelius Vanderbilt, chairman of the general committee in charge of New York City's campaign to raise $1,500,000 for the Salvation Army's Home Service Fund of $13,000,000.

Jeff Davis, "king of the hoboes," has been designated by Mrs. J. Borden Harriman as her chief aid for "Doughnut Day." He will tour the city in a "side-door pullman," loaned by Captain Whiting, of Camp Mills. The box car will be equipped with a kitchenette, manned by two Salvation Army lasses. They will fry doughnuts for Davis to sell. Two well-known society women will accompany the "hobo king" on his float.

Women Pledge Support
The women's committee will not be divided into teams, as has been the custom in other drives, but each member of the committee will obligate herself to obtain thirty subscriptions of large amounts. Included among the women on the committee are Miss T. Louise Sands, Mrs. Morris Kellogg, Mrs. Frederick Lewisohn, Mrs. Dalziel, Mrs. William Greenough, Mrs. Mary Hatch Willard, Mrs. Douglas Robinson, Mrs. E. L. Hayles, Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, Mrs. Whitney Warren, Mrs. Charles L. Oelrichs, Mrs. John R. Drexler, Mrs. George Gordon Battle, Mrs. H. F. Osborn, Mrs. Walter Maynard, Mrs. F. Gray Griswold and Mrs. Ralph Sanger. Colonel Margaret Bovill will be in charge of 150 regular Salvation Army Ambassadors. A. Elkus, Lieutenant Colonel Kenneth Gardiner and Francis Sisson, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company.

Both they and the volunteer workers will use the sealed boxes adopted for the campaign. Each day the boxes will be turned in to Charles H. Sabin, president of the Guaranty Trust Company, treasurer of the drive. The boxes will be destroyed every night and new ones distributed the following morning. Thus, no account will be kept of the amounts collected by individual workers.

Borough Campaign Leaders

The campaign in each borough will be under the direction of a distinct committee, although General Vanderbilt will head the drive for the entire city. The Manhattan chairman is Joseph P. Day, Stanley E. Gunnison is chairman in Brooklyn, Judge George V. Mullan in the Bronx, Clarence M. Lowes in Queens and Frederick A. Johnston in Richmond.

George Gordon Battle in a letter to The Tribune yesterday bore witness to the worthiness of the Salvation Army's plea for funds and to the scrupulous care with which the money it receives is expended. He wrote in part:

"It may not be amiss for one who has personal knowledge of the facts to assure those who contemplate making a contribution to the Salvation Army fund that the money of the army is expended with the most scrupulous care and economy and with the highest degree of efficiency. As chairman of the National War Work Committee of the Salvation Army, as representative of the Salvation Army in the United War Work Campaign drive and as a member of the committee of eleven which has distributed the funds raised in that drive I have had an intimate personal knowledge of the activities of the Salvation Army both abroad and on this side of the water. I can and do certify that the most scrupulous economy has been observed in all expenditures, that their accounts have been kept in the most businesslike manner and with the greatest accuracy, that no excessive salaries have been paid, and indeed, that such salaries have sufficed only for the living expenses of the devoted servants of the army."

Worked at Home, Too

"Furthermore, I would call the attention of the American public to the fact that the Salvation Army has not only done wonderful work overseas, but it has already established many huts in great centres of population and in many of the camps in this country. It is impossible within the limits of this letter to give any detailed list of these home activities. But they have been very extensive, very beneficial and very efficient in every respect. So that the Salvation Army already has proved itself not only as an overseas war relief and religious agency, but as proficient in the same line of noble endeavor in war time in our own country. Those who think of contributing may be assured that they cannot possibly give to a higher or more beneficent work, and furthermore, they may be certain that in the execution of this work there is no extravagance, no loose methods; but on the contrary, the strictest economy, and the most businesslike procedure."

Methodists at Luncheon

Given in Honor of W. S. Moore,

New President of Society
Walter S. Moore, newly elected president of the New York City Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was the guest of honor yesterday at a luncheon given by the society at the Pennsylvania Hotel. Former Justice William L. Ransom, retiring president, was guestmaster.

It was announced that the society will spend $3,500,000 for the extension of missionary work in Manhattan and the Bronx. A large part of this sum will go to acquire property and establish missions.

20,000 Scouts Cheer as They March in Rain

Storm Fails to Dampen Ardor of Boys Out to Welcome General Sir Robert Baden-Powell, of England

Park Plans Abandoned

Reception Transferred to Madison Square Garden; 10 Million Members Goal

If meeting adversity with a philosophical smile is the prime requisite of the ideal Boy Scout of America, let New York be credited with at least 20,000 good Scouts.

That was the number of khaki-clad boys who braved a penetrating rain yesterday afternoon to march to the sheep meadow in Central Park to extend a typical Scout welcome to Lieutenant General Sir Robert S. Baden-Powell, originator of the Scout movement in England.

That was the number of smiling, cheering, dripping boys who, with hands playing and colors shedding rivers of water, marched down to Madison Square Garden to carry out their programme there. And when it was found that not more than 15,000 of their force could find space even to stand in the Garden, the remainder, just as cheerfully, set out in the rain to return home, with hands still playing and colors still facing the storm.

"We're Scouts, aren't we?" demanded one of the boys whose efforts to participate in the welcome had proved fruitless and provoked sympathy.

Ample Reason for Cheerfulness

And that was accepted as ample reason why no complaint should be made against the unpropitious weather. Lack of seating capacity and other hardships that might have caused the average adult to grumble.

Officially, yesterday's outpouring of the best of New York's boyhood was to meet and welcome the head of the British scout movement. But it also was the opening of the great membership campaign of the organization, for which a mark of 1,000,000 adult associate members and a total of 10,000,000 boy members has been set.

William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, now chairman of the national citizens' committee for scout week, gave the latter figure yesterday as the probable number of new members. Since Mr. McAdoo announced that the entire machinery of the Liberty Loan organization had been turned over to the boys it was accepted as probably correct, not only by the scouts but by experts.

Drive to Last a Week

The drive, which promises to be one of the most spectacular of the numerous nation-wide campaigns carried on during the past three years, will cover the week of June 8-14. The entire strength of the scout organization, which worked wonders in the selling of thrift stamps and Liberty Loan bonds during the war, for the first time will be used exclusively for the benefit of its own programme.

The interior of Madison Square Garden presented an inspiring picture to those who occupied seats on the temporary stands as troops after troops of scouts, each carrying a big American flag in addition to its troop flag, marched into the building and took seats assigned to them.

On the platform with General Baden-Powell and Lady Olave Baden-Powell, chief guide of the Girl Guides of England, were many hails of the American boy. There were Daniel Carter Beard, national scout commissioner; Colin H. Livingstone, president of the Boy Scouts of America; James E. West, chief scout executive, and numerous notables who are interested in the scout movement here and abroad.

"When the country found itself at war with the greatest enemy ever known, and sent 4,000,000 men to fight, it was necessary to organize another army here," said Mr. McAdoo. "It was an army of finance that was needed."

"Now the Scouts have another big job on their hands. They must Americanize America. Before this war we had a favorite form of organizing into groups, the Boy Scouts, who knew they owed allegiance to the flag of freedom. Yet when the war broke out we found these hyphens having an effect upon their citizenship. We don't want hyphens, and it is up to the Boy Scouts of America to erase the hyphen and make them all good Americans."

The boys arose and gave their characteristic ear-piercing yell, followed by three cheers and a stamping of feet that caused windows to rattle.

General Baden-Powell introduced Mr. Board, who was cheered just as lustily when he arose to introduce General Baden-Powell, said the boys of America hold a warm place in their hearts for the Scouts across the sea, and they appreciate what the British boy did during the war in the cause of the boyhood of the Old World.

"The message I will take home to the British Scouts when I return is that you look upon them as your brothers," said General Baden-Powell. "In that you are returning what is exactly their feelings toward you."

"I want to congratulate you upon your war work. You have done it well. It is now up to you to see that those who made sacrifices during the war, even up to the supreme sacrifice, have not made them in vain. You have got to keep up in peace time the pace you set during the days of fighting. You must show those other heroes that their examples were not thrown away. And you must show by your own actions that when you become men you will do as they have done should a similar occasion arise."

But the greatest enthusiasm was reserved for the boys who received from the hands of General Baden-Powell the Eagle Scout badge, the highest honor that may be conferred by the organization.

Those so honored were Delwin Clansman, of Troop 2, Yonkers; Alan Codd, Troop 9, Yonkers; David Carmichael, Troop 14, Plainfield, N. J.; Charles Geisler, Troop 81, Brooklyn; Mortimer Brandt, Troop 600, New York; Marshall Posey, Troop 7, Orange, N. J.; Herbert Skane, Troop 726, New York; Wallace

McIntyre, Troop 8, Mount Vernon; George H. O'Neill, Troop 8, Elizabeth, N. J.; Richard Wheelwright, Troop 8, Elizabeth, N. J.; C. S. Bishop, Troop 18, Elizabeth, N. J.; Frederick C. Pyne, Troop 18, Elizabeth, N. J.; Victor Mohr, Troop 8, Weehawken, N. J.; Charles Challinor, Troop 23, Syracuse; Alexander Ross, Troop 7, New Brighton, N. Y.; George Josten, Troop 8, New Brunswick, N. J.

In presenting the badges the founder of the Scouts said there are only about 400 Eagle Scouts among the half million Scouts in this country.

Others on the platform, most of whom were cheered by the boys as they took their seats, were: C. J. Atkinson, Major-General Thomas H. Barry, S. Reading Berton, H. S. Braucher, Nicholas F. Brady, William C. Bruce, Brigadier General George Chapin, Mrs. Arthur C. Choate, Barton G. Collier, Alfred W. Dater, Sigmund Eisner, Guy Emerson, Philip J. Fagans, Dr. George J. Fischer, Francis D. Gallatin, Lewis B. Gawtry, Joseph P. Grace, John Sherman Hoyt, Jeremiah W. Jenks, Major Erin Lankaster, William A. Lee, Arthur Letts, Dr. Charles F. MacFarland, Judge Martin T. Mantou, Admiral John D. McDonald, Byron R. Newton, Frank M. Patterson, George D. Porter, George D. Pratt, Frank Presbrey, Oscar A. Price, Edward Prosser, Mrs. James Y. Ripplin, Edgar M. Robinson, Charles M. Schwab, Mortimer L. Schiff, Colonel Norman Thwaites, Lewis Tracy, Frederic Watson and Mr. and Mrs. Glynn Gould.

Luna Park Opens for Season

With Many New Attractions

Luna Park, Coney island, opened for the season last night. Despite the rain in the early evening more than 75,000 people were out. A parade of employees, headed by the park band, preceded the opening.

Among the added attractions are a number of tanks, resembling the regular military machines. Patrons are given an opportunity to ride over ground resembling a battlefield. "The Last Shot," a panorama of the war, showing the final blow struck by America before the surrender of Germany, is another new attraction.

National Gallery Of Art Urged That Will Not Shame U. S.

Fine Structure at Capital Is Advocated Before Federation by Dr. Walcott, Secretary of Smithsonian

Urging the need of a national gallery of art, Dr. Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, declared yesterday before the convention of the American Federation of Arts that the progress in art made in the United States is not to be boasted of.

Dr. Walcott called attention to the fact that Congress, in the act of 1846 founding the Smithsonian Institution, provided for a museum which was to include, in addition to natural history objects, a gallery of art which should embrace both paintings and sculpture, engravings and architectural designs.

"It is thought," said Dr. Walcott, "that the national government should provide a suitable building for the historical and art collections on a scale that private resources can scarcely hope to provide for."

Nation Shamed Before World.
"We must have," he continued, "a national gallery of art in Washington, an art museum of the widest scope, which must be suitably housed in a structure that will not shame the nation before the world."

Dr. Walcott went on to say that the American Federation of Arts, "perhaps the strongest single force for art in America," could be of great aid in establishing such an institution.

Thomas Whitney Surette in discussing the subject of "Music in Relation to the Other Arts in Art Museums," advocated the need of music in museums and cited numerous instances where such a plan was carried out to good effect, especially in Cleveland. He said that it is highly essential that music be placed among the fine arts.

In the discussion that followed, Joseph Pennell, etcher, asserted that "art is really aristocracy" and that it is recognized as such in every country of the world. He said that instead of aiding art to improve in this country, as do the French and English, who recognize that "art pays," our government is hesitant and laggard in its aid.

Directors were elected as follows: Cass Gilbert, Francis C. Jones, Duncan Phillips, Charles Moore, Charles D. Norton, Edward S. Harkness, Edward Robinson and James Barnes, for three years; John W. Beatty for two years, and Charles H. Coolidge for one year.

Among the resolutions passed was one urging Congress to commemorate the purposes for which the United States entered the war by striking off special coinage for the year 1920. Another urged Congress to prevent the building of unsightly memorials, as in the case of Civil War monuments, in the national cemeteries. The federation failed to pass resolution advocating a secretary of arts for the Cabinet.

Day Asks Ice Conservation

Commission Charges Waste in City's Hotels

Dr. Jonathan C. Day, Commissioner of Markets, in a statement yesterday pleaded for a city-wide conservation of ice to avert an impending shortage. He said that unnecessary use of ice was being made in hotels. More ice than is necessary is put into drinking water, he declared. The price of ice, he said, should not be in excess of that of 1918, $4.40 a ton wholesale.

St. Louis Gets Soccer Meeting

CHICAGO, May 17.—St. Louis was voted the seventh annual meeting of the United States Football Association governing body at the close of the two-day session here to-day. An invitation from the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce for the 1921 meeting was favorably referred to the incoming national council.

The Solution of the Coal Question Is the Boiler

What do you care about the hard-coal monopolists? Let them rave and let them charge what they please. You don't have to use hard-coal. You never did have to use it. But you didn't know it and you wouldn't let anybody tell you. Now that the hard-coal monopolists are bearing down on you, it's a wise idea to listen.

The solution of this coal question lies in the boiler and not in the coal. You can solve it yourselves and escape the burden imposed by the hard-coal monopolists—and at the same time save 50% of your present fuel cost.

If you will install a Kewanee Smokeless Firebox Boiler in your plant, you will never again have any worry about the kind of coal you use. The Kewanee Smokeless Boiler will burn the cheapest grades of soft coal without smoke or soot. It will create just as much heat and it will give you supreme satisfaction.

Throw out those boilers that won't burn soft coal without smoke. Put in the Kewanee and be absolutely independent of the coal barons. You won't have any waste in fuel. You will save the difference between the cost of anthracite and the cost of soft coal.

The cost of Kewanee Smokeless Boilers is so small as compared with the steady cost of hard coal that you ought to look into the question at once and get every last detail of information. Write to the officers of the Kewanee Boiler Company. They will send a representative to see you. And they will prove every word of this advertisement. Consult any prominent and reputable heating engineer. He'll give you the facts.

The illustration at the top of this advertisement shows one of the popular portable Kewanee Smokeless Boilers for heating. It burns soft coal, any grade, without smoke or soot—and gets from 21 to 35% more heat from the same amount of coal than ordinary boilers.
